

Maintenance Management Basic Training

At last! A short course to explain the fundamentals of maintenance management and the successful application of preventative maintenance in industry.

I will provide your staff with the conceptual understanding, methods, resources, confidence and INSPIRATION for running a successful maintenance management programme. The training is relevant to engineering and operational staff alike and is an essential primer to users of computerised maintenance management systems.

The course draws examples from the BWM program, although the learning is relevant to any system, computerised or not.

Opportunities exist to discuss specific individual issues and attendees are challenged to relate the coursework to their own work environment. No pre-requisite qualifications are required.

Each attendee receives their own Maintenance Management Basic Training Workbook detailing the session notes and their own inspirations to take back to their workplace.

The 3 hour training session covers the following:

- What's in it for me?
- Viewpoints across the operation
- Effective maintenance management
- PM theory
- The work cycle
- Applying the basic principals
- Resourcing the tradesman
- Optimising
- Leveraging your data

Attendee feedback:

"Simple, not over complicated. I loved it!" LC, Hastings... "I loved the energy of the presenter" DL, Taupo.... "I can now take what I already knew and use it to do a better job" CG, New Plymouth.
